Getting help with your complaint

About the Professional Standards Authority

The Professional Standards Authority for Health and Social Care<sup>1</sup> promotes the health, safety and wellbeing of patients, service users and the public by raising standards of regulation and voluntary registration of people working in health and care. We are an independent body, accountable to the UK Parliament.

We oversee the work of nine statutory bodies that regulate health professionals in the UK and social workers in England. We review the regulators' performance and audit and scrutinise their decisions about whether people on their registers are fit to practise.

We also set standards for organisations holding voluntary registers for people in unregulated health and care occupations and accredit those organisations that meet our standards.

To encourage improvement we share good practice and knowledge, conduct research and introduce new ideas including our concept of right-touch regulation.<sup>2</sup> We monitor policy developments in the UK and internationally and provide advice to governments and others on matters relating to people working in health and care. We also undertake some international commissions to extend our understanding of regulation and to promote safety in the mobility of the health and care workforce.

We are committed to being independent, impartial, fair, accessible and consistent. More information about our work and the approach we take is available at www.professionalstandards.org.uk.

Although we do not investigate complaints about healthcare, people often contact us and ask us to help so we have put this guide together to help you. We realise making a complaint about your healthcare or about the treatment provided to a relative can sometimes be a difficult decision to make. The NHS is made up from numerous different organisations and it is not always clear when, where and how to raise concerns. Getting an answer to your concerns is not always straightforward and it is important to ensure that you direct your complaint to the correct organisation so that your complaint can be investigated properly. If you are thinking about making a complaint, there are a number of organisations which can help and guide you through the NHS complaints procedure.

This quick reference guide presents the options you have when making a complaint about the NHS in Wales and where complaints about non NHS care should be taken.

If you want to make a complaint about NHS care

First steps

If you feel able to do so, the best thing to do first is to raise your concern with the people involved. This could be the doctor or nurse who treated you, their colleague or line manager. Explain what happened, why you are unhappy and what you would like to happen to help put things right (for example, an apology). You can raise the concern yourself or you can give permission for someone to do it on your behalf.

If you do not want to make a formal complaint

Ask for the name of someone appropriate for you to speak with or write to. For example, the person in charge of the service you have concerns about or someone from the complaints team. If you are not sure who you should talk with, ask the organisation for help.

If you want to make a formal complaint

You should ask for the organisations complaint procedure before writing down your concerns to help make sure you are making the complaint to the right person or team.

Describe:

- (1) What happened;
- (2) Who was involved;
- (3) When and where it took place;
- (4) How it has affected you;
- (5) What you would like to happen as a result of your complaint;
- (6) Ask for an acknowledgment of your complaint (you should receive this within three days of making the complaint);
- (7) Agree how often you will be kept updated on the progress of your complaint;
- (8) Make sure you give your name and contact details, and how you would like to be contacted.

Please note that complaints should be made within 12 months of the event leading to the complaint taking place and that organisations should provide their full response within six months.

If you want information on the NHS complaints procedure

NHS Direct Wales provides advice on the NHS complaints procedure

NHS Direct Wales also helps you find the full name and address of the organisation you want to complain about.

If you want help with making your complaint

You can get free and confidential advice about the complaint process and help with making your complaint from:

- Community Health Councils
- Citizens Advice
- The (English) Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman has listed tips on how to make a complaint
- If you have completed the first stage of the complaints procedure and do not think that your concerns have been properly looked at, you can complain to the Public Service Ombudsman for Wales. The Ombudsman can be telephoned on: 0300 790 0203
- You can find information on how the Ombudsman will consider your complaint by following this link
- Follow this link for a list of organisations which the Ombudsman covers.

If you want to complain about mental health care

You can complain about mental health care through the NHS complaints process. But complaints about the use of the Mental Health Act 1983 – for example, detention under the Act – should be made to the Health Inspectorate Wales.

Information about this can be found at: <http://www.hiw.org.uk/mental-health-review-service-1>

You can get help with your complaint from the following organisations:

- Advocacy Support Cymru
- MIND
- Advocacy Services Wales.

If you want to complain about the regulatory organisations

If you are concerned about the conduct of a health professional or have fitness to practise concerns, you can complain to the relevant regulatory organisations (listed below). You can do this at the same time as complaining to the health organisation or to the Public Service Ombudsman for Wales.

Citizens Advice provide general guidance on how to complain to the regulators.

You can consult the individual regulatory organisations for advice on when and how to bring concerns to their attention, on the following telephone numbers and websites:

- Nursing and Midwifery Council (nurses and midwives) Telephone: 020 7637 7181
- General Medical Council (GPs, hospital doctors and surgeons) Telephone: 0845 357 8001
- Health and Care Professions Council (arts therapists, biomedical scientists, chiropodists / podiatrists, clinical scientists, dietitians, hearing aid dispensers, occupational therapists, operating department practitioners, orthoptists, paramedics, physiotherapists, practitioner psychologists, prosthetists)

/orthotists, radiographers, social workers in England, and speech and language therapists) Telephone: 0800 328 4218

- Action against Medical Accidents \(AVMA\) provides advice for people who have referred their complaint to a regulatory organisation. It can be contacted at: Telephone: 0845 123 2352.

If you want to complain about social workers

Complaints about social workers should be made to the Care Council for Wales. Telephone: 0300 30 33 444.

If you want to complain about continuing healthcare

NHS continuing healthcare means a package of continuing care arranged and funded solely by the NHS. There are a number of checks that have to be made before continuing healthcare funding is given and appeals for funding need to be made to local Independent Review Panels. If your appeal is unsuccessful, you can complain to:

- The Public Service Ombudsman for Wales
- The Public Service Ombudsman for Wales provide factsheets on NHS continuing care
- Age Concern Cymru also provide guidance on NHS continuing healthcare
- Advice on Care also offer guidance.

If you want to complain about care homes and social care services

If you have a complaint about a care home or about social care services, you should first complain to the organisation responsible for providing/ commissioning the care. This could either be an NHS organisation or a local council. If you remain unhappy with how your complaint has been looked at, where you go next will depend on who is responsible for providing/commissioning the care:

If it is provided by an NHS organisation: you can raise your concern with the Care and Social Services Inspectorate Wales. Telephone: 0300 7900 126

Please note that whilst the Care and Social Services Inspectorate Wales welcomes your concerns, comments and compliments, it is unable to investigate individual complaints or resolve disagreements between people and their service providers.

If it is provided by a local council: you raise your concern with the Public Service Ombudsman for Wales. You can find information about how to do this by following this link.

If you have a safeguarding concern

If you think that a child or vulnerable adult might have been harmed, or might be at risk of harm, you should contact the relevant social service team.

- Public Health Wales will provide contact details for your area.

If you want to complain about the care you paid for (non NHS)

Not all care is provided by the NHS. Some treatment is privately paid for and is given by organisations which do not belong to the NHS. This is sometimes called private healthcare or independent sector healthcare.

If your complaint is about privately funded healthcare, you should complain to the healthcare provider. If your complaint is not resolved to your satisfaction, you can take your complaint to the Public Service Ombudsman for Wales and they provide details of how it looks at these types of complaints.

If your complaint is about privately funded Dental or Optical Treatment, you can contact:

- Dental Complaints Service
- Optical Consumer Complaints Service.

If you want to make a personal injury claim

If you think you have suffered personal injury and wish to claim compensation, you should consult a solicitor.

- The Law Society gives details of solicitors who are members of its personal injury accreditation scheme at: www.lawsociety.org.uk
- Citizens Advice provides information on making personal injury claims

If you think that a criminal offence has been committed

If you think that a criminal offence has been committed during your healthcare, you should contact the Police. Details of your local police can be found at:

www.police.uk/

If you want to share your experience about healthcare regulators

The Professional Standards Authority

We promote the health, safety and wellbeing of patients, service users and the public by raising standards of regulation and voluntary registration of people working in health and care. We are an independent organisation, accountable to the UK Parliament. We oversee the work of nine statutory organisations that regulate health professionals in the UK and social workers in England. We review the regulators' performance and audit and scrutinise their decisions about whether people on their registers are fit to practise. We can refer final fitness to practise panel decisions to court where we believe they are unduly lenient and do not protect the public.

You can help us check that the regulators are meeting the Standards of Good Regulation by sharing your experience about the regulators.

When we review their performance, as we do each year, we take account of many sorts of information. This includes things the regulators tell us, things we observe or read and things you and others tell us.

We would like to hear about your experiences to help us see what they do well and where they might need to improve. We will use the information you give us to help us build an overall picture of their performance. We publish a report about each regulator's performance every year and we will send you a copy if you would like us to. We may not mention your information in the report, but you can be sure we take it into account.

You can share your experience here

*If you want to make a complaint about a health or care professional or about the regulator, please contact the regulator direct as we do not have the power to investigate complaints.

If you want to share your experience about your care or care you know of

Health Inspectorate Wales

The Health Inspectorate Wales inspects and regulates NHS services and independent healthcare providers. It also invites people to share their experience of the care and treatment they have received. Although the Health Inspectorate cannot investigate complaints, the information it receives helps identify where services are doing well and where improvements are needed.

You can share your experience here.
